MORAL EFFECT OF HUN
DEFEAT INCALCULABLE

"DER FRIEDENSTRUM" FAILS TO MATERIALIZE AND 600,000 SOLDIERS DISAPPOINTED.

With the French Armies in the Field, July 21—"Der Friedenstrum" is not yet.

It was under that name—"offensive for peace"—that the German commanders led their divisions into battle a week ago. From the consequences of which they are now endeavoring to extricate themselves.

This word obtained from prisoners in all parts of the long battle line, reveals the ambitious plans with which the Germans entered the battle.

Because of the promise of peace the hold on more than fifty divisions (600,000 men), the moral effect of the defeat is incalculable. The material effect is more easily summed up. Epernay is safer than ever; the forest of the mountain of Rheims remains an impenetrable barrier north of the Marne.

The net result has been the loss of an appreciable portion of the territory taken May 27, and the lines of communications from Soissons to the rear area, seriously threatened. This much is certain to date.

French soldiers are unwilling to believe, as yet, to call this the "second battle of the Marne." They prefer to call it the battle of the "Rheims mountain."

As they analyze the German plan, and the thoroughness with which it was shattered, it develops that the enemy did not seek to storm the line, but sought to turn it, first by crossing the Marne, then rapidly widening their bridgehead. Then, since they expected the allies to be strongly entrenched in the valleys of the Marne and the Seine, toward Paris, they would turn their backs on the capital and move toward Epernay.

Meanwhile, other German forces were to crush General Gouraud's army and seize Chalons. The two German armies then would join and Rheims and Rheims' mountain would fall without a fight.

It is apparent the Germans underestimated the available allied forces, and the spirit with which they would meet the assault.

Some insight into the political effect on Germany can be gained from the protestations of a Pan-Germanist officer who was taken prisoner. He declared that certain Bavarian elements failed to defend their positions "earnestly" and practically accused them of treason.

On the other hand, there are many evidences that the crown prince used all of the best German divisions available.

American troops have completely cleared Barillon wood of the enemy and have driven the Germans five miles north of Chateau Thierry.

(Barillon wood extends from Chateau Thierry eastward along the north bank of the Marne and extends about five miles northward.)

Among those identified are the sixteenth division of the "Invincible Brandenburgers," who acquired that title when the Kaiser especially recognized them in February, 1918, for the capture of Fort Douaumont, one of the principal defenses of Verdun.

In the Campaign of Verdun, the Germans were compelled to throw in four new divisions (48,000 men) after Thursday's fighting to repair the breaks in their line, scattering their battalion after battalion along various sectors, although they had been intended as a part of the previous reserve to definitely turn the tide of battle and force immediate peace. One of the new things introduced in the battle was a new German armored truck. These were used in transporting munitions across fields and along roads under heavy shell fire. The trucks have six wheels, with a catapillar tractor, and their armored bodies are 25 feet long, nine feet high and eight feet wide.

Isolated allied units, who were cut off in the early fighting, were supplied with food by French aviators until they were rescued.

RECOMMENDS CHANGES IN AUTOMOBILE LAWS

Atlanta, July 23.—In a special report recently issued, Secretary of State H. B. Strange recommends a number of improvements for existing automobile laws of the state of Georgia; and, in presenting the audit of the books of the late Philip Cook, who succeeded in office by appointment of Governor Dorsey, pays a fine tribute to the executive ability and integrity of his predecessor.

The changes recommended in the automobile laws include a number of things that will aid in the proper licensing of cars, the improvement of the roads and the increasing of the revenue from that source.

Secretary Strange will offer for

Calomel dynamites
A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel dynamites. It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your drugstore and get a bottle of Doan's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and while you're sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may kill you, while if you take Doan's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

GOVERNMENT TO CONTROL NATION'S LABOR SUPPLY

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE TO DIRECT WORKMEN FROM NON-ESSENTIAL TASKS.

Washington, July 29.—In order to meet increasing demands for labor in essential war work, Uncle Sam next Thursday, August 1, will declare a "virtual monopoly" on the nation's labor supply and will take over under a centralized employment service the job of supplying workmen to all shops and factories engaged on government contracts and which employ more than 100 men.

To provide the men for these war industries, the federal employment service will seek to divert labor from all non-essential production. So far as possible, the attempt will be made to supply local needs from local workmen, or from workers of nearby districts.

But certain industries are such, and
